SEYMOUR C. PASKO'S DIARY, 1862

PRELIMINARY NOTES

I have sometimes changed the line breaks in the original diary for purposes of ease and readability. Hopefully this has not distorted the intended meaning of any of the diary entries.

Also note that Seymour often uses "to" the way we use "at." For example, he will say that he "choped wood to home" when he means that he chopped wood at home.

Page breaks are indicated with centered asterisks, thus:

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Seymour Pasko was born at South Johnsbury, New York, on 20 January 1841, according to his diary as well as a typescript by former Thurman, N.Y. town historian J. A. Magee of a handwritten record of the children of Noah H. Pasko (photocopy in my possession); not 20 June 1841, as his gravestone records. He was the son of Noah Harvey and Maria (Spoor) Pasko of South Johnsbury. His grandfather, John Pasko, had come to South Johnsbury from Granville, New York, in 1799 (see Levi Pasko deposition, Rev. War Pension File W19953; 1855 N.Y. Census, Johnsbury, Warren Co., N.Y., Dw.261-Fam.286)

He lived in Johnsbury until his enlistment in the 96th New York Infantry Regiment in late 1862. The notes at the end of his diary by his brother Walter Pasco state that he was wounded "before peetersburgh," Virginia on 19 August 1864. On 2

September 1864, as his diary and gravestone state (but not 2 Sept. 1869, as the above record states) he died at Fortress Monroe, in Hampton, Virginia. He is buried in Pasko Cemetery in South Johnsbury, N.Y.

The 1865 N.Y. Census, Election District 1, Johnsbury, Warren Co., N.Y., page 100, states in the special section dealing with Civil War casualties that Seymour enlisted on 22 August 1862 as a private in the 96th Regt. (N.Y. Volunteers); that he had the same status at his death; that he was "Struck with a piece of shell on Picket" duty and died of accidental wounds at Fortress Monroe on 2 Sept. 1864; and that his body was returned for burial.

DESCRIPTIVE NOTE

The diary measures 6" x 3" x ½". It is leatherbound and on the cover is "DIARY. 1862."

On the first page is

Johnsbury
Bought March 14th 1862

The diary's printed title is Pocket Diary for 1862. Containing An Almanac for New York and San Francisco, Blank Space for Every Day in the Year, Cash Account for Each Month, Memoranda, &c. It was published in Cambridgeport, Mass. by Denton & Wood, 1862.

Following the title page are about twenty pages of railroad distances, postage rates, lists of Sundays, and tidal, lunar, and solar charts.

The diary then commences. The names of three days are printed on each page with space to fill in the details.

The entries through March 19th are written in brown ink. After that date they are primarily written in pencil with occasional entries in the same brown ink.
